BURNS ARE FATAL TO
HARDIN CO. WOMAN

Mrs. Ervine Nichols of Alger Dies in Kenton Hospital.

KENTON, March 23—Mrs. Ervine Nichols, 16, of Alger, died Saturday morning in the McMurtry Hospital at Kenton as the result of burns suffered Thursday when cleaning fluid which she was using to clean a coat at her home, caught fire from a spark from a stove, igniting her clothing.

Her husband extinguished the flames with his hands, but not before Mrs. Nichols had been critically burned about the face and body.

Funeral services were to be conducted today at 2 p.m. in Alger with Rev. McWhorter officiating. Burial in Preston cemetery there.

Mrs. Nichols is survived by the husband, Ervin; the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Girish Cole; four brothers, Thomas, Raymond, Arnold and Ernest; two sisters, Velma and Virginia, all of Alger. She was born in McGoffin county, Ky., July 7, 1929.

one by one, Murray denied:

1. That the United Steel Workers union, of which Murray is president, had any agreement with the CIO-CIO not to call a steel strike.

2. That the CIO did nothing to assist the General Motors strike.

3. That Murray was "delinquent" in his duty to lend personal assistance in the GM strike. Murray declared he personally offered to enter the negotiations and use the "full measure of the CIO" to bring about a settlement.

4. That Murray and other CIO lieutenants had planned to come to the UAW convention and influence the Thomsen-Huether campaign.

Murray said the rumor regarding him and the GM fact-finding board was "circulated by defamers for the purpose of injuring the CIO."

Before Murray spoke his name was being bawled around freely by Thomas and Reuther.

Says Reuther Is "Dope"

Thomas, who is seeking his seventh term as UAW president, said Reuther really was "running against Phil Murray for the presidency of the CIO and is opposing CIO policy."

He said the fiery, 38-year-old leader of the General Motors strike was a "dupe" of AFL leaders in a movement to draw the auto union into the AFL.

In his speech today, Murray was excused to denounce the rumor that he persuaded the General Motors fact-finding board last January to reduce its recommended wage increase from 24 to 19½ cents.

Both candidates in the UAW race—Thomas in a news conference and Reuther in a speech—had mentioned this rumor. They said it was originated by C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors.

Last night, Thomas told reporters jammed into his hotel room that Reuther took up Wilson's story and spread it around.

Says It Isn't So

Reuther, at a news conference of his own, said this was a "completely lie."

Murray had said before coming here that he would not take part in the UAW election campaign.

The Thomas forces, however, continued to express their hope that Murray would give aid to their cause. The 2,000 delegates will vote on the candidate Wednesday.

specific in the brief negotiations to date.

The operators were represented by associates who declined to be identified by name as willing to grant the 400,000 hitherto unnamed a pay increase equal to that given in other basic industries. In steel and auto this averaged 10½ cents an hour.

Some operators were said, however, to fear that this tentative concession on wages would fail to satisfy Lewis because he has completely subordinated the wage and hour demand to this health and welfare fund proposal.

Lewis has indicated he will give notice Tuesday or Wednesday that he intends to terminate the present contract at midnight next Sunday, March 31.

Before he gives that notice, the operators hope to submit a list of counter proposals for a new contract. They ran into trouble over the weekend, however, in reaching agreement on how to meet Lewis's nine generalized proposals, including his big one for a health and welfare fund.

The United Mine Workers leader has asked for increased wages for a shorter work week, hinting that he wants to return to a 7-hour day. But he has not been TOKYO, March 25—Crowds shouting "Hooray" greeted Emperor Hirohito today on his third "meet the people" tour within a month.

He visited a hospital, a silk mill, an industrial plant and a prefectoral government office.

The tour, which took Hirohito about 40 miles from Tokyo, proceeded smoothly except when a minor official bowed too close to the emperor's lumbus and was smacked in the head by an opening door.

Hirohito's chauffeur and other court attendants quickly rendered first aid.

Salicylates

It has often been said that one man's meat is another man's poison and the same thing is true of medical drugs.

Some people, for instance, are over-sensitive even to such a commonly used drug as aspirin, or preparations like aspirin, known as salicylates. Taking of these drugs even in moderate doses by such sensitive individuals may result in a condition known as salicylism, which is, in reality, a kind of poisoning.

Some persons, too, may develop the same disorder from the habitual taking of such preparations to relieve any and every ache or pain, often in large doses. This is bad business for two reasons.

First, because these people may be suffering from an ailment which requires real treatment and second because salicylism is no joke.

The most common symptom of salicylism is ringing in the ears. Other symptoms which occur often are dizziness, sickness to the stomach, and vomiting. Sometimes, there are fever, rapid breathing and mental disturbances.

The sickness to the stomach and vomiting is not due to the effect of the salicylate on the lining membrane of the stomach but, according to Drs. Charles M. Caravati and Clarence B. Whims of the M.C.A.U.S., come from the action of the drug on the nervous system. This is proven by the fact that these symptoms occur whether salicylates are given by injection into a vein or taken by mouth.

Salicylates are often given in large doses in the treatment of rheumatic fever, a condition which causes pain and swelling of the joints, fever and, sometimes, damage to the heart. When such treatment is carried out, the patient must be carefully watched to make sure that salicylism does not develop. If it does, prompt treatment should be carried out.

If the salicylism is severe, mental excitement, confusion and delirium may develop. The patient is restless and speaks incoherently and occasionally is manic. These last symptoms of stimulation of the nervous system are followed by depression and unconsciousness.

According to Drs. Caravati and Whims, the treatment for salicylism consists in discontinuing the use of the salicylates, giving large doses of some alkaline substance such as baking soda and giving plenty of fluids, both by injection and by mouth using methods to reduce fever, giving plenty of food and such drugs as caffeine or ephedrine if there is severe depression of the nervous system.

Salicylates are very useful drugs when properly used. Nonetheless, they may prove dangerous when taken indiscriminately and in over-large quantities. Hence they should be taken only when prescribed by a physician, a man who understands both their uses and their dangers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. R. I am a woman of thirty-five years of age. My legs turn a dark red color on the front and sides. At times, there is itching. What causes this?

A. Answer: The condition you describe may be due to some trouble with your circulation, vitamin deficiency or to some type of skin disease. It would appear advisable to consult a skin specialist so that the exact cause may be determined.

G.O.P. SAYS WALLACE CLOUDING UP ISSUES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 25—Rep. publicans lashed out today at Secretary of Commerce Wallace for what one of them described as "an effort to tangle America foreign policy in partisan politics." Wallace's declaration that a G.O.P. congressional victory would "have a gravely disturbing effect on the whole international situation" was regarded by minority party lawmakers as setting the pattern of probable Democratic attack in the approaching election campaign.

Senator Ball (R-Minn.) struck back at the cabinet member's remarks—prefacing the annual Jackson day dinner speech by President Truman here Saturday night.

—that if the Republicans win in November "the traditional isolationist policies would inevitably lead to world disaster."

"Wallace not only is raising a false issue but he is running a very grave danger of tangling American foreign policy in partisan politics and in my opinion that would be tragic," Ball told a reporter.

But Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) said he believed Wallace was "on sound grounds in his statements on what would be the meaning of the election of a Republican congress."

Some of those to whom Wallace addressed his words were not present at the $100-a-plate dinner to hear his criticism at first hand. Rep. Boykin (D-Ala.) disclosed yesterday that 12 fellow southerners—both senators and representatives—refused to attend the function.

Declining to name them, Boykin told newsmen the holdouts took the position that Wallace "should not be speaking to Democrats."

A warning to boys in the Green Camp area that it is unlawful to shoot from an automobile was issued today by Marion County Game Protector O. H. Neimeyer. The game protector pointed out it is unlawful to even carry a loaded rifle in an automobile.

WILY FOX AVOIDS HUNTERS AT MORRAL

No Animals Found in Four Drives by 70 Farmers.

No foxes were killed, or even seen, at the Morral hunt Saturday, according to C. H. Nelmyer, Marion county game protector. Nearly 70 farmers and sportsmen participated in four separate drives which started from Morral school at 11:30 a. m., but no foxes were seen during the entire drive. Mr. Nelmyer said he believes the fox may be scarce in Morral area. The drive was sponsored by the Morral chapter of the Future Farmers of America Committee in charge included James Conley, Robert Hinaman, Ronald White and Fred Barger.

A large drive is being planned for Saturday in the region of the Campbell school where Mr. Nelmyer reports many foxes have been seen. During a recent drive there seven foxes, including a black one, got away. A coyote also has been reported in the area, and is believed to be responsible for damage to poultry and small livestock.

Saturday's hunt will start at 10:30 a. m. from the Campbell school and at least five separate drives are planned.

One of the main topics to be discussed at a meeting of the Marion County Wildlife conservation committee to be held the second week in April will be the fox law. The present law, effective to March 31, 1947, makes it lawful to kill foxes in Ohio any season. Certain groups, however, according to Mr. Nelmyer, are seeking to put a closed season on the animal. The game protector has urged members of granges, farm organizations, sportsmen's clubs and nature clubs to be present. Exact date of the meeting has not been set.

New Head for China Secret Police Listed

By The Associated Press
CHUNGKING, March 23—Although the widely-reported plane-crash death of Gen. Tai Li, head of China's secret police, has not been confirmed officially, the Kuomintang newspaper "World Daily News" said today that the government has selected Li Gen Cheng Chiehmin as his successor. General Cheng, government commissioner at the Peiping executive headquarters and a member of the commission which arranged the truce with Chinese Communists, formerly was director of the intelligence department board of military operations of the national military council.

Tai Li was called by his enemies "The Hitler of China." He had been one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's most loyal supporters since the early days of the revolution. His plane crashed near Nanjing March 11.

PALMS on the altar of Epworth Methodist church provided a background for the single large bouquet of white gladioli and lighter tapers held in two seven-branch candelabra to form the setting for the wedding of Miss Miriam Jean Linder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Linder of 150 Merchant Avenue, and Robert D. Crowe of Mansfield, Saturday evening. Completing the decorations were triple tapers in the windows at either side of the church. The couple repeated the double ring service read at 8:30 o'clock by the pastor, Dr. S. M. Ingman, in an open church ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was preceded down the aisle by her matron of honor, Mrs. M. C. Probst of Lansing, Mich., Miss Jeanne Rodehus of Dayton, bridesmaid, and Donna Deyarmon of Mansfield, niece of the bridegroom, flower girl.

The bride's gown of white bridal satin was fashioned with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, long, button-trimmed sleeves extending in points over the hands, and the skirt, made with a long paneled torso effect, ending in a long train. A pleated net tulle held her fingertip veil and she carried a single purple orchid on a Testament which had been carried by her father through World War I and also by the bridegroom during his service in World War II.

The attendants' gowns were in an orchid shade and were fashioned on lines similar to the bride's with cap sleeves. Their lace mitts matched their fitted caps and they carried fan-shaped bouquets of violets and shell pink carnations with orchid streamers. The little flower girl wore an orchid brooch with an off the shoulder ruffle, and long, flounced skirt. Velvet bows in a deeper shade of orchid dotted the shoulder ruffle and lace flounce of the skirt. She wore lace mitts and a fitted cap and her flowers were a miniature of the attendants' bouquets.

The Epidemic Is Waning

A PHRASE with wide and significant vogue at the close of 1945 is falling into disuse.
The "strike epidemic" which was universally expected then and was the major premise in every prediction about coming conditions in business reached its climax and now is waning.

It was an epidemic in a literal as well as a figurative sense. The fact that strikes occurred and received the publicity they deserved as important news led to a spread of the infectious strike spirit. Psychologically, the situation was favorable for such a spread.

The end of the war had stimulated workers and union strategists to think about ways and means of maintaining as much as possible of war boom wage levels. Price inflation, both actual and imminent, sharpened fears of inability to meet the rising cost of living.

Furthermore, men and women who had worked steadily during the war were not averse to the prospect of having a little time to themselves if a strike was ordered; they went through the motions of strike votes without misgivings about the outcome of a work stoppage.

There still is the possibility of further important work stoppages, but it now is secondary to the possibility that production may swing into its stride and hold that stride for many months to come. The peak of the strike epidemic has passed. If for no other reason, it has been passed because so many wage earners now are immunized by having used up their savings and exhausted their desire for time away from their jobs.

Uniforms Don't Make the Soldier

ELIMINATING the clothes distinction between officers and enlisted men is only one of a number of things the war department might do to create a better spirit for a civilian army.
It is a step in the right direction and will be acclaimed by all but those who need it most.

No one can listen to complaints against the officer caste system by enlisted men without being aware of a very real problem for the armed services. It explains nothing to say that such complaints are inevitable and chronic. They reflect a condition that deserves the highest intelligence the government can command.

World War II was the first major trial of the American theory of a civilian army. World War I was merely a warmup by comparison.
Many things were learned. The armed services know more about their problem than they did before. They are showing signs of putting some of their new knowledge to work.

One of the lessons clearly was this: that old world military systems, fashioned chiefly after the Prussian, are not suitable for the United States. Our fighting men cannot be expected to suspend all their convictions in the name of military discipline. In short, they are not Prussians but Americans, and as Americans they need a military system shaped in the American tradition of equality, fair play and maximum liberty for the individual, regardless of station. The enlisted men's complaints are the sum of many little things, unimportant in themselves but extremely important in the aggregate. The clothes distinction was one of the little things.

Why LaGuardia?

A GOOD many Americans who have been watching the rise and fall of Fiorello LaGuardia on the uncertain tides of New York City politics wonder why he now is being plugged for director general of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. The relief and rehabilitation of LaGuardia cannot be compared in importance with the relief and rehabilitation of Europe.

It doesn't even sound like a good place to keep him on ice pending further developments that may bring him back into politics. UNRRA seems to have turned into one of those things that produce more headaches than prestige.
Unless the Truman administration wants to put the former mayor of New York on a spot that will keep him squirming, it would be healthier for him to stick to his new radio and newspaper jobs.

There also is the detail of former President Herbert Hoover, whose investigation of food conditions in Europe temporarily has taken the shine off the UNRRA directorship. It was rumored when Mr. Hoover accepted the assignment that he himself would be the next head of UNRRA. From Mr. Hoover to Mr. LaGuardia is a long jump. UNRRA, for all its shortcomings, deserves to be kept out of American politics as far as possible.

Finds "Time" Corrupts Plea for American Art.

WASHINGTON, March 25 — Time magazine, whose great and brilliant owner, Henry Luce, has not been able to clear it of its cells of Communism, although I hear authoritatively he has tried hard and succeeded to a considerable extent, has attempted to corrupt my plea for American art. In the art section of its issue of Feb. 25 it said I was a "Hearstling," whatever that is, and deceived its vast public as to what my plea was. The "Hearstling" idea is a timeworn habit of the Communists which has deceived its public for years. The facts have long been well known in the newspaper world. I had 400 clients in my business before leaving my column to King Features Syndicate and now I have 300. My syndicate has never advised, asked or invited me to write any thing, and makes money from me — not me from it. My money comes from the great bulk of above 300 newspapers throughout America, aside from the Hearst newspapers. All Hearst papers do not buy it. My independent position is well established — and known.

The device used for concealment of my idea by deception was similarly time-worn. In condensing quotations of mine, Time omitted the quotation which would have proved my point and published quotations which seemed selected to make me ridiculous and the idea obscure.

ners, Joe Stalin and Winston Churchill.

Churchill and Stalin met at Yalta, at Teheran, and at Berlin.
Now they talk as though they'd like to meet in an alley.

Postwar revelations have thrown new light on a number of things: It may even develop that Rudolf Hess was a better salesman than he was led to believe.

Of course it should be borne in mind that Mr. Churchill's remarks, like those of the firebrand on the radio, do not necessarily reflect the views of his sponsor.

In fact, any day now I expect to pick up my paper and find therein a legal notice:

"W. Churchill having left my bed and board at 64 Downing street, I am no longer responsible for his obligations. —J. Bull."

Author of the Week

By W. G. Rogers

EDMUND WILSON, author of "Memoirs of Beavertown," is a long and short story, is a member of the second of two groups of critics: one, those who practise what they preach. Those who just preach often complain they'd write a book. If only they had the time. Wilson turned his back on top of regular reviews and a trip to Europe. He is literary critic of the New Yorker magazine.

Hecate, goddess part earthy and part not, presides over the spirit of these half-dozen stories as surely as over the place. In one, time runs mystifyingly backward; in another, a man's hate changes to love, out of which he makes money; in another, guests become host and hostess and have a phantoms try at what they hesitated to risk in reality; in another, the wounded soul develops into the injured body.

But it isn't only this aspect which gives them unity. They are all told in the first person by the same person. Characters in one reappear in another, and their relationships remain the same. Finally, they have in common a most distinguished prose style.

Three were published before:

"The Man Who Shot Snapping Turtles," "Eileen Terhune," and "Glimpses of Wilbur Flick." Of the others, "The Princess With the Golden Hair" is a novelette, easily the most effective; "The Millhalls and Their Damned Soul" indicts the book publishing business and book clubs; and "Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn at Home," in which you must prepare for several pages of French, winds up with the claim that, though He-cabe county is a New York suburban area, it's universal and its inhabitants are middle-class people anywhere . . . which is perfectly true.

"The Princess With the Golden Hair" is 150 pages of practically nothing but sex given an admirable Proustian twist. While on a purely imaginative level in effect, it is, strangely, on an impurely physical level in detail. If you want to become really intimate with a couple of girls, you'd almost do better to meet Anna and Imogen than go philandering on your own account. Though the censors may call foul, this is certainly the writing of the most praiseworthy caliber.

He who gives what he would as readily throw away, gives without generosity; for the essence of generosity is in self-sacrifice. —Sir Henry Taylor.

Generosity of mind is one of the beautiful jewels of wisdom. It is the result of long and patient effort in self-control. —James Allen.

called modern art is psychologically Communistic and the basic point I had used to prove it was that it lacks beauty. This basic proof I have omitted entirely.

I think I can prove both my idea and the point to any fair-minded intelligent person who possesses even a visual knowledge of art.

Say an artist paints a few lines on canvas. These are curved, straight or irregular, but have no recognizable substance. An average person looking at them cannot say what they are. Of itself, such a picture has no beauty. Its lines are not arranged in a way to appeal to our sense of beauty.
It lacks appealing substance or design. The colors are not selected to appeal to our sense of color rhythm either, but may look like an untaught painter.

No appeal, visual beauty, rhythm or any other sense is made by this form of art. To understand why they have it hanging around and are selling it for big sums, you must be fool enough to try to imagine what the artist thought he was conceiving.
If he had any thoughts. This is the secret of that form of art. You must enter a realm of thought
control, or thought enslavement, away from your natural inclinations.
In order to "appreciate" it — by which word I mean be duped by it.

Essence of Communism

Is my point not valid that this is of the same essence as Communist, the same method of thought-controlled art transferred to politics? It requires its subjects to enter a realm of imagination to conceive beauty it cannot present visibly. The Russian standard of living was the lowest of the western world after 20 years of Communism before the war. It cannot present any visible facts of superior results. It cannot appeal to reason for natural senses. It does not occupy the plane of reason, or seek it. You must enter a realm of thought
control or thought enslavement beyond the natural senses to imagine a non-existent beauty.

Communism is political cubism, non-objectivity, sur-realism in its philosophical essence and therefore in truth.

Contrast this with the inspiration of American art rooted in hundreds of years of concepts of naturalists and reason. It is an expression of our world philosophy of the freedom of the individual spiritual human being.

Now, my purpose in bringing the matter up for analysis in the first place was to promote an understanding of our own art as measured not only against the incompetent Communist product of the imagination, but against the art of our own realm of history, particularly European art which has been thought to be superior to ours although I do not think it is. I believe exhibits of our art should be promoted on a wider and more understanding scale, and that in every way possible its great quality should be stressed in the American people.

outcast. Little if anything was done to understand him or help him. But, during the past few years, medical research and study rooted physical, social or emotional reason behind their behavior. That's why today tomuch is being done to help them by finding out and correcting the condition that leads them to excess."GEORGE: "How many folks are there like that, Judge?"OLD JUDGE: "Well, according to scientific research, 95% of the people who drink drink sensibly, 5% do so unwisely, at times.

Included in that 5% is the small percentage of the sick people I'm talking about."GEORGE: "That certainly gives me a clearer picture. It's the most sensible approach I've ever heard on the subject."

EX-HERO MIHAJLOVIC NABBED AS TRAITOR

By The Associated Press
BELGRADE, March 25—Gen Draga Mihajlovic, once hailed as a guerrilla hero in the fight against the Nazis was officially reported under arrest as a traitor and war criminal today following his capture by Yugoslav authorities.

Alexander Rankovic, minister of the interior, announced to a cheering parliament yesterday that the war-time leader of the Chetniks who had been hunted for nearly two years in the Yugoslav hills by Marshal Tito's forces had been seized March 13.

Rankovic did not say where the capture occurred but it was rumored that Mihajlovic King Peter's former war minister was trapped near Visegrad near the Serbian-Bosnian border.

An official radio broadcast said the general was captured in a mountain cave guarded by only 11 men of his forces, which once were estimated total as many as 200 000.

Dr Ivan Subasic, former foreign minister, said last May that Mihajlovic will be shot when captured. He added that the Chetnik leader would be given a fair trial but we have enough legal evidence to convict him.

The American oil tanker fleet now consists of 763 vessels.

INDIA AGAIN HEARS OFFER OF FREEDOM

By The Associated Press
NEW DELHI, March 25—British cabinet mission reaffirmed today the Indian government's pledge of independence for India if she wins it.

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, flanked by A. V. Alexander and Sir Stafford Cripps, told nearly 300 correspondents in a prepared statement that the discussions now to begin are preliminary to the settling up of machinery whereby the terms under which India can realize her full independent status can be determined by Indians.

Pethick-Lawrence, who is secretary of state for India, recalled Prime Minister Attlee's recent speech in the house of commons that India can have complete independence if they want it, and added we believe ourselves that India will find great advantages in remaining within the free association of the British commonwealth. But it is a free association and we have no desire to press India to stay within it against her considered judgment.

The mission aims at making the necessary interim arrangements quickly and with a minimum of disturbance, he said.

Club owners would not identify the player nor confirm his losses.

Postwar Marines' Feet Show Improvement

By The Associated Press
OCEANSIDE, Calif.—The Marine Corps' post war feet are improving says Dr. (Dr.) Turchin, orthopedist who has seen many a pair march to war and come limping home.

The Camp Pendleton training and replacement specialist credits the improvement to a reduction of combat training and the replacement of brittle veterans by younger men.

This he explained was tending to eliminate marching fractures—the most common "Lathernecks" foot ailment during the war.

Turchin based his conclusion on examination of 10,000 feet which with the 150,000 total he estimates would reach five miles if placed end to end.
